

SCHOOL OF VETERINARY MEDICINE
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, DAVIS

The University of California, Davis, lies in the state's Central Valley. Davis is located 14 miles west of Sacramento, the state capital, and 72 miles northeast of San Francisco. Davis is one of the state's few remaining "college" towns. UC Davis is the home of the Veterinary Medical Teaching Hospital and many other specialty centers. The campus has a full range of undergraduate studies, graduate-level opportunities and other professional schools.

CURRICULUM: For the first two years students are primarily engaged in core instruction in the basic sciences. Beginning the winter quarter of the first year, students may select from a variety of elective course offerings. Third-year students further specialize by selecting from various species-specific elective opportunities. Fourth-year students participate exclusively in hospital clinical rotations.

ADMISSION PROCESS: All applicants must apply through VMCAS. Academic and nonacademic criteria are used in the evaluation process. Transcripts and GRE scores must be sent directly to the college starting July 1, 2005. Three letters of evaluation are required and sent directly to VMCAS.

Applicants must visit our website www.vetmed.ucdavis.edu and click on Student Programs/Admissions for complete information and requirements. Optional supplemental forms may be found at: <https://wot.vetmed.ucdavis.edu/oasis/downloads.cfm>

Applicants who consider themselves disadvantaged due to cultural/social, economic, educational, physical, or other factors, and wish to have this considered as part of their VMCAS application may also submit a separate application for the Veterinary Medical Opportunity Program. The application may be obtained at <https://wot.vetmed.ucdavis.edu/oasis/downloads.cfm>

Additional information/forms must be sent directly to our School. UC Davis does not require a supplemental application.

Interviews are conducted late February-March. Final notifications are sent no later than April 1.

Information and application for our Veterinary Scientist Training Program (DVM/PHD) may be found at

SIZE OF ENTERING CLASS: 122. Priority is given to California residents. The University of California accepts a small number of uniquely qualified nonresidents and applicants from WICHE states.
