

Dr. Stacy Semevolos is currently the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs and Graduate Programs at Oregon State University. She obtained her Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree from the University of Illinois in 1994 and then completed an internship at Rochester Equine Clinic in New Hampshire. She spent 2 years in private practice in Albuquerque, NM before entering a large animal surgery residency at Cornell University. She completed her residency and obtained a Master of Science degree from Cornell University in 2000. Since starting her faculty position as a large animal surgeon at Oregon State University in 2002, she has continued her clinical and research focus in equine lameness and comparative orthopedics. She served as Associate Dean for Student and Academic Affairs from 2015-2019 and Associate Dean for Academic Affairs and Graduate Programs starting in 2023. Dr. Semevolos teaches in multiple courses including Clinical Skills, Principles in Surgery, Large Animal Surgery, Equine Sports Medicine, and Advanced Equine Lameness. Her Spectrum of Care experience stems from both private practice and university practice as a large animal practitioner. She is dedicated to providing a variety of treatment and diagnostic options tailored to patient and client needs.